FARMERS' WIVES.

[For the Whig and Courier.]

M. E. J. has an article in Nov. 10th, on "Farmers' Wives," and now while my three little noisy blessings are snugly tucked between the blankets for a long, sweet nap, I feel like having a friendly chat with M. E. J.

First and foremost then, if you think that farmers get their living as easily and happily as do mechanics or tradesmen, I perfectly agree with you, and think besides that the feeling of security the farmer has, in adverse times, is worth a thousand-fold. Come hard times, hard money or soft money, come all sorts of commotion in the land, if he owns his farm, his living for himself and family is secure, even if he cannot sell anything they can live on what the farm produces; in this respect, the farmer has a great advantage over the mechanic or tradesman; but when we judge of the difference in position of the farmer's wife and that of the tradesman, the advantage is greatly with the latter.

Now I will take the town where I was born, where I was married and have lived a farmer's wife for many years, and see how it agrees with the written opinion of M. E. J.

It is a first-class farming town, better than the average, a town of good dwelling houses, and ample barns, strangers often remark that they rarely see a farming town so thrifty and prosperous as ours. Well, beyond the births, deaths, and marriages that occur from time to time, with an occasional bit of slander that sets the whole neighborhood by the ears, it is an endless round of monotony, (we will make one further exception) the present Presidential election has sent its ripples of excitement into every household. We are generally for Hayes and Wheeler, and that proves what an intelligent town it is.

Now M. E. J. tells us that "the monotony is easily broken by a little tact and ingenuity, and living on a farm becomes as varied and intelligent as town life." Tell us oh, M. E. J.! We beseech you! Give us some clue to the tact and ingenuity, necessary to bring about such a result, and we farmers' wives will bless you in our heart of hearts!

As for "leisure hours" in country homes, they come on rainy days, to the farmer and his sons; to the farmer's wife, never! and even if there were some leisure time, why body and mind must rest, and it is surely the case that bodily overwork takes away the taste and ability for study. Hired girls in the country are as scarce as angel's visits. The farmer can never afford to hire a girl, only in case of severe sickness; and if his wife cannot do the work alone, the only thing to be done, (and this is the worst feature of the whole) is to keep one of the girls out of school.

Women love pretty things; they delight in a cosy, well furnished house, they love soft carpets, and bright pictures, as well in country houses as in city homes, but alas, for the rarity of such delights! in this first class farming town, not more than one woman in twenty has a carpet for her kitchen floor, and in nine cases out of ten, if they have one on the sitting room floor, it is made by their own tired hands, out of the cast-off clothing of the family, and if the woman who loves pretty things dares to brighten up her homely rags by using some garment that is partly worn, and is such a pretty blue or scarlet that she cannot refrain," why all prudent house-wives comment on her extravagance. After months of hard work, sewing, coloring, and weaving, in hours and minutes stolen from other duties, the carpet is done, and is such a comfort, if it is only a rag carpet. It saves the hard scrubbing of the floor, it makes it warmer, and it makes the room look better. Now my friend if she is a mechanic's wife, and he gets his pay in money, can buy a carpet just as good, and a vast deal prettier, with the earnings of one or two weeks; perhaps you say, the farmer is three times better able to buy his wife a carpet. Why doesn't he use some of the money he receives for that yoke of fat oxen, or for those great jars of butter; or that fine crop of beans? That flock of early lambs brought a good price, why does he not buy a carpet for his wife? Ah, my friend, I can tell you very well. The money he received for the oxen goes to buy young stock, to eat up the straw this winter. The butter and the beans brought about seventy dollars, and that makes a pretty good payment on that new meadow lot he bargained for last spring; and the early lambs went for grass seed, groceries, etc., etc. There's no need of the farmer's wife having a nice carpet, she would fret continually at all the mud brought in, at planting time and harvest.

Is M. E. J. the wife of a mechanic who has a home in town? if so, does she ever think when washing day comes round, as with deft swift fingers she turns the faucet, and the soft water comes plashing down into her sink, filling pans, pails, tubs, and rivers of it if she chooses, does she ever think, I ask, of her country sister, who with sweaty brow and aching arms, is working wearily at the handle of a cistern pump? Dear me! "How handy you do have water! I have to bring all mine from the door-yard. Mr. Smith don't get much time to do chores about the house," says her next door neighbor, and she in turn is envied by the next one whose only supply of water is the spring at the foot of the hill.

This is the state of things in this thriving town. Now home where the crystal water flows as freely as the tears. Of course you have to pay the water tax, but is it a harder earned tax than that paid by the farmer's family to obtain theirs? We think not.

We will look at one of our prosperous farmers, who lives at the extreme end of the town; of course, they are hard working people or they would not have so much property. They are so far from the store that they are not tempted to spend a few odd pennies now and then, and it only takes one hundred of them to make a dollar; they buy what is necessary, but they don't spend for trifles. The crops are all harvested and the fall plowing nearly completed. I see him now, following his horses, and casting a satisfied glance now and then over his broad acres. He owes not a dollar. He is the Independent Farmer! King, indeed! but constant hard work has destroyed his taste for study, (if he ever had any). He cares nothing for society, has stayed right at home so long that he feels awkward and out of place, if one happens to call on him in school meeting for an opinion. He will not take any part in Lyceum or Lodge—thinks they are good things, but don't care much for them. His wife has filled her place faithfully in the house, but still retains a liking for society and lectures, and often wishes they lived near enough to the village, so that she could see somebody or run into the sewing circle at the Hall now and then. The house cleaning is all done and the children nearly ready for the winter school; she has not been anywhere for an age; a neighbor drops in with her knitting. "John says there is a notice up in the post office, of an entertainment at the Hall to-night. Some of the young folks have got it up. He said he saw several of the corner folks who know about it, and they think it will be worth while to go. I rather think we shall go down." Well, the good housewife wonders in her own mind if her husband can be persuaded to go,—and here a little tact and ingenuity comes in, and just after supper, which was steaming on the table when the farmer came in, she says, "Richard, have you ever sent for the nails to make your new feed boxes?" "No." "Well, it looks as if we may have a rainy day to-morrow, and if you had the nails you know, it would be just the thing. Mr. Brown says there is an entertainment at the Hall this evening.—let's go. I feel as if I needed to get out. I think the change would do me good; you can get the nails and a few things we need from the store as we go along." What says this King of the farm? "You know, Mary, the horses have been plowing all day, and are not fit, either of them, to go down there and stand till ten or eleven o'clock; and I'm so tired myself that I don't care if they have forty entertainments—I'm going to bed."

So Mary sits down, with the lines in her face drawn a little harder, thinking, perhaps bitterly, of those evening rides in the "old days" when Richard was her lover, and well remembers his saying one evening, "Old Charlie don't care to travel very fast to-night,—we have been plowing all day. The society of a pretty girl don't seem to cheer him up as it does me." If they did not live out of the world, she could go alone, but the road is dark, lonely and long, so with a weary sigh she resigns herself to the monotony of her life.

The case is different with the mechanic. Daily contact with his fellowmen has served to keep alive his interest in society, and has smoothed away the rough angularity which stands out so prominently in the farmer. He is practically educating all the time in the little courtesies of life that are in daily use, with those he comes in contact with, and insensibly to himself he acquires an affableness that is natural.

When he goes home at night with his basket of shavings for the morning fire, he touches his hat gracefully to his wife, (unaware, perhaps, that he has done so,) and goes lightly up the steps. No chores to do, his time is his own till seven o'clock tomorrow. "Mary, there's a free concert in the church on Broadway this evening. Harry Jones and all the boys are going with their wives, so I guess we will go. Or if he is too tired, why she can go alone just as well; there is a nice brick walk all the way; the street is brilliantly lighted and thronged with ladies and gentlemen; so she enjoys the concert as a delightful change after the hard day's house-work.

M. E. J. asks if any other means to a living requires so much knowledge or thorough understanding? I do not know, but one thing I do know, and that is, a man may be a farmer and a successful one, even if he or his wife cannot read a word; if a man does not know how to do anything else, he can always farm. It is a God-given instinct, which came to Adam on his exit from Eden, and has been inherited ever since. We know whereof we affirm; we have one at least of those wealthy farmers, a good, honest man, respected by everybody, who makes not the slightest pretence to an education; and we have many others who, as far as book knowledge is concerned, do not know "B from broomstick."

I am also a wondering admirer of that lady who writes creditable articles, and does her own house-work. I know of but very few who would dare undertake it among us. We do not have time to write a letter once in a month. Butter and cheese-making have sadly obliterated our knowledge of orthographical and grammatical rules. We should never think of writing a creditable article, (and we beg your pardon, MR. EDITOR, for daring to use the columns of your paper to reply to M. E. J. Please don't snip it off. I dare say farmers' wives do not trouble you often.)

We might contrast strongly almost every phase of town and country life, the inanity and sameness of the landscape where the eye of the farmer's wife must rest day after day, and year after year, with the busy street in town, where the mechanic's wife can see an ever changing panorama, stylish equipages, dashing past, gaily dressed ladies promenading the sidewalk, the parade fire companies, torch-light processions, and so on in endless variety, but there is no place to stop unless we do so abruptly. Just a touch on one more idea, advanced by M. E. J., and we forbear. Napoleon the Great, said, "Nothing is impossible to him who wills." M. E. J., a believer in the same doctrine says, "and I do not believe that our minds crave what we have not the ability to possess, otherwise it would seem like omniscient intastice."

This, to us, is a startling assertion. If we could believe it, we would straightway possess many things which we have been accustomed to think were a part of our "Castles in Spain."

Myrtle B., a little girl of four years, cried a long time for a piano. After a while she wiped her eyes and said to her mother, "Well, I shall have a piano when I go up to God's House." And we think, when the heart-cravings of farmers' wives are realized, it will be in the blissful Hereafter, when we go up to God's House.

The little one died last week, very suddenly, and the manner in which it was buried raised a suspicion that the child had been foully dealt with. After the child's death the mother and her sister, both women of the most abandoned character, wrapt the child up in an old shawl and carried it off into the swamp and buried it. A coroner having learned the facts had the body disinterred and held an inquest. A verdict was rendered that the child came to his death by blows received on the head, fracturing the skull, and also from dislocation of the neck, and that either would have produced death. HOW THE FATHERS DID IT

From the New York Evening Post]

Very proper respect is professed for the political precedents established by the fathers of the country Among the loudest professors have been some of our Democratic friends who now propose to disregard these precedents How the fathers did it in the matter of counting the electoral votes for President appears from the report of the proceedings of the First Congress (See Benton's Abridgment of the Debates, Vol I p 9)

On the 6th of April, 1789, the Senate proceeded to ballot for the choice of a President for the sole purpose of opening and counting the votes for President of the United States John Langdon was elected and Samuel Lilkworth was then directed to inform the House of Representatives that a President of the United had been elected for the sole purpose of opening the certificates and counting the votes of the Electors, and that the Senate was ready to discharge that duty Mr Ellsworth reported that he had delivered the message Mr London from the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House was ready to meet it The report goes on

The Speaker and House of Representatives were admitted to the Senate Chamber, and the President elected for the purpose of counting the votes declared that the Senate and House of Representatives had met and that he in their presence had opened and counted the vote of the Electors for President and Vice-President of the United States which were as follows (Here follows a list of the votes by States) Whereon it appeared that George Washington Esq was elected President and John Adams Esq Vice-President of the United States of America

The business ended with the appointment of persons to notify Washington and Adams of their election It will be seen that nothing is said of the appointment of teller by either House of Congress and that there is no account of the process of opening and counting President Langdon announces that he has opened and counted the vote, which may be taken as sufficient proof that he did so It may be taken for granted that the opening and counting were done solely by the President of the Senate

Four years later on the 11th of February 1793 (see Vol I Abridgment p 35) the Senate ordered its Secretary to notify the House of Representatives that it was ready to attend the opening and counting of the vote for President and Vice-President The report goes on

The two Houses having accordingly assembled the certificates of the Electors of the several States in the Union, which came by express were by the Vice-President duly opened read and delivered to the tellers appointed for the purpose who having examined and ascertained the votes that entered to them to the Vice-President what which last was read to the two Houses of which as follow [Here follows the list] Whereupon the Vice President declared George Washington unanimously elected President of the United States for the period of four year to commence with the fourth day of March next, and John Adams elected Vice-President of the United States for the same period to commence with the 4th day of March next,

Here is [illegible] for the first time (Mr [illegible] had been appointed on the part of the Senate the day before) and examine and count the vote The Vice President opens and reads the certificates and declares them to the tellers The vote is counted the constitutional vote, is not counted in the report of the proceedings after the vote is opened and ascertain whether [illegible] or not counting the votes or of counting the votes of the Vice President's count we [illegible] counting but on the other hand [illegible] of the election seems to put [illegible] of the business into the hands of the electoral

On the 13th of February 1797 the president of the Senate announces to the House of Representatives that the votes of the electors for President and Vice President of the United States from all the sixteen States of the Union have been received duplicate of the return by post from fifteen of the States and duplicate from the state of Kentucky not come to hand It has been the practice heretofore on similar occasions to begin with the returns from the State of the highest of the United States and proceed to the other I shall therefore do the same at this time

The report goes on as follows

Mr Adams then took up the packet from the State of Tennessee and after having read the superscription broke the seal and read the certificate of the election of the electors the votes were given to the clerk of the Senate requesting him to read the report of the electors which he accordingly did All the papers were then handed to the tellers viz Mr Sedgwick on the part of the Senate and Messrs Steavens and Parker on the part of the House of Representatives, and when they had noted the contents the President of the Senate proceeded with the other States, in the following order [Here follows the list] All the returns having been gone through Mr Sedgwick reported that according to order the tellers appointed by the two houses had performed the business assigned them, and reported the result to be as above stated

The share of the two Houses in the business appears to be a purely clerical one performed through their tellers The President of the Senate then said

By the report which has been made to me by the tellers appointed by the two Houses to examine the votes there are [the] then repeated the substance of the list] In obedience to the Constitution and law of the United States and to the commands of both Houses of Congress, expressed by their resolution passed in the present session I declare that John Adams is elected President of the United States for four year to commence with the 4th of March next and that Thomas Jefferson is elected Vice-President for four years, to commence with the 4th day of March next And may the Sovereign of the Universe the ordainer of civil government on earth, for the preservation of liberty, justice and peace among men, enable both to discharge the duties of those offices conformably to the Constitution of the United States, with consententious diligence punctuality and perseverance

It will be seen that in 1793 Mr Adams declared himself to be elected Vice-President, and that in 1797 he declared himself to be elected President, and asked a blessing upon himself in that capacity The proceeding seems to have excited no remark in either case, but we can imagine that now, rather than to have such a thing happen, some our Democratic friends would nullify the laws, suspend the Constitution and treat the precedents of the fathers with contempt

BELL-DOZE In the interests of a much abused and debased language, we enter protest against the currency of the word "bull-doze." The unhappy prominence which Louisiana has acquired during the political crisis has precipitated upon the public this altogether ridiculous, and partially brutal word. In the Acadian regions of that State exists a society known as "The Step" It is pledged to Tilden and Reform If a negro is invited to join it, and he refuses, he is given fair warning, and then, if still contumacious, he is taken to the woods and given 100 lashes on the bare back This is called a bull dose, or a dose for a bull. The patient has usually opposed the cause of Tilden and reform after one such dose, or has died in the country From this phase came the verb, in the infinitive, "bull-doze," and Louisiana despatches fully charged with local color, speak of five "bull dozed," or "bull-dozed" parishes Some persons are printing this "bull-dogged" which, it seems to us, is adding insult to injury already heaped upon Ouachita, East Feliciana, West Feliciana, Morehouse and East Baton Rouge —N Y Times

THE VICTORY IN THE NATION

NO DOUBT OF THE REPUBLICAN TRIUMPH

[From the N Y Times Nov 9]

The news from South Carolina this morning shows more clearly than before the extent of the Republican victory Not withstanding the efforts of the Tilden Democracy, and in the face of intimidation before and after the election, the Palmetto State, on the official count, gives Governor Hayes a majority of nearly 1 000 votes This result has been arrived at after the purely sham recount demanded by the shot gun Democracy and enforced by the Democratic majority of the Supreme Court Not content with depriving the State Board of their judicial powers, the Democratic attorneys, when they found the result going against them endeavored to exclude the members of the press from the sessions of the Board and otherwise prevent the fact of a Republican majority from becoming public In Florida, where the same policy has been attempted, it is hourly becoming clearer that Hayes has a substantial majority in the total vote of the State Additional returns from the Democratic counties in the backwood districts reduce the Democratic claims to the most hopeless figures and virtually give the State to Hayes The Democratic leaders are despondent, and as a last resort are endeavoring to prevent the Governor from canvassing the Electoral vote according to the law of the State There is not the slightest chance for the success of the Democratic schemes however, and Florida is as safe for Gov Hayes as Vermont In Louisiana the Democrats practically concede the State to the Republicans, and admit that excluding the votes returned for them by the "bulldozing" process, they are hopeless by beaten The visiting Republicans in New Orleans replied on Saturday to the last letter of the Democratic delegation from the North, to the effect that they will be happy to confer at all times with the latter and to co-operate with them as individuals in whatever may seem right They think however that the conference for purposes of joint action proposed by the Democrats is not only improper but is rendered unnecessary by the communication of the Returning Board inviting five representatives of each political party to be present at the counting of the vote They conclude with reminding the Democrats that concerted action on their part with the view of influencing the action of the State authorities would be entirely unjustifiable and beyond their privilege The reply is signed by Hon John Sherman Hon Stanley Matthews Hon James A Garfield, Hon E W Stoughton and seventeen others The nominations now are that the Tilden managers, finding themselves in a minority in the Electoral College, propose to try to buy their candidate into the Presidency The effort will not succeed Rutherford B Hayes has been elected President of the United States and will undoubtedly be inaugurated on the 5th of March next

SOUTHERN INTOLERANCE

The New Orleans Daily Bulletin has suspended for want of support It was Democratic but because it would not pander to the fire eating element it found no favor in the eyes of the white leaguers Its closing word were

The reasons for this step are, in brief our conviction that there is no vocation in New Orleans for a non partisan paper the demand for such mentioning a that is thoroughly independent, moderate and impartial journals in Having exercised these facts to our entire satisfaction, we lose no time in withdrawing from the field The Bulletin disappears from the arena to fill that it not which has been full ever since it came out under its present management—the need of its return Until obliteration It has not a single quality demanded of newspapers at this junction of affairs, it does not magnify the errors of its opponents nor palliate those of its friends, and it has no place therefore in the sympathy or confidence of the community We regret while recognizing this fact and we act upon the knowledge without hesitation and yet we shall always carry with us whatever may befall the consciousness that we have never once, by assertion or reasonable inference directly or indirectly, contributed to the dark tide of passion bitterness and misunderstanding under which Louisiana languishes to-day

THE RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE

A QUESTION THAT SHOULD BE PROPERLY STATED

Mr Editor I notice among the proceedings of the City Council in this morning's Whig that the Mayor is directed to request the Governor to submit to the Justices of the S J Court for their opinion a certain question relating to the right of suffrage The case is presumed to be the one lately presented to the Board of Aldermen in this city As such the presentation is very imperfect leaving out the most essential facts that the person was a married man, and that with his family he had established his home in town and had no other domicil The question would better read as follows

"Is a married man, otherwise qualified as an elector, who with his family had established his home for an indefinite term of time in a town where there is a literary institution and had no other domicil, deprived of the right of suffrage by the fact that his principal or only object in removing to such town was to attend the institution as a student?

The fact of his established domicil and home being in the town is the only fact that justifies the submission of the question and this is entirely ignored in case submitted P

LOUISIANA

The View of Judge Stanley Matthews — The Electoral Vote Rightfully for Hayes

NEW YORK Nov 21 Judge Matthews arrived at Cincinnati yesterday from New Orleans and the following is his opinion on Louisiana affairs That with a free and fair election Louisiana is beyond question a Republican State that a fair canvass of the votes according to the laws of that State and according to justice and right will give the Electoral vote to Hayes The election as conducted in many parishes was a farce and a fraud upon popular government. That the face of the returns including those of the intimidated parishes will show a majority for the Democrats of not over four thousand, but a revision of the returns as required by law, will give the Republicans a decisive majority That the mistake in regard to the Republican Electors in one of the parishes will not amount to over 400 votes, and will not affect the general result

Overwhelming Evidence of Fraud and Intimidation

The Returning Board, he believes, will act fairly and impartially following the letter and spirit of the law The evidence in regard to violence and intimidation in many of the parishes is overwhelming As an illustration may be mentioned the case of one voting precinct where the colored men were marched to the polls between lines of armed whites and compelled to vote the Democratic ticket, then marched to another place where they received certificates that they had so voted, which was to protect them from violence.

The Democrats Unwilling that Justice be Done

The action of the Returning Board ought to give the State to Hayes and it ought to settle the controversy in the minds of all fair and intelligent men, but that the Democrats as a party will so accept the result he has grave doubt. The evidence of fraud and violence and intimidation, however, will be fully reported and the people of the North can judge for themselves. The members of the Returning Board are fair men and fully entitled to confidence Despatches are sent North from New Orleans by Democrats of that city who do not believe what they telegraph It cannot be denied by any candid or fair-minded man that Louisiana is a Republican State, and that an election conducted fairly would have placed the result beyond dispute This is known to the Democrats as well as to the Republicans, but the former set out to carry the State for Tilden at all hazards, and they are not now disposed to give it up

The Forbearance of the Colored People

Where there was peace at voting precincts, in what are called "bull-dozed" parishes, it was the result of violence and intimidation that preceded, and where negroes voted the Democratic ticket they did so in most cases to save their lives It is the opinion of Judge Matthews that if the negroes were in any degree as vindictive, cold blooded and cruel as the lawless whites the South would be devastated, but the colored people bear what the whites would not bear for a day, and they are victims of their docility and forbearance.

What War would Unloose.

The white people of the South do not, however, talk war They know too well what that would mean. They know that there is a magazine in their midst that, if touched by the fire of civil war, would explode with an effect that would be destructive and uncontrollable.

Republican Majorities

A New Orleans special to-day says the Electoral votes of Ascension and Avoyelles were canvassed, both giving Republican majorities. No objections were raised These parishes gave 6 Republican Representatives

Proceedings of the Board.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21, The Returning Board met at 11.15 o'clock and at the suggestion of Gov. Wells the doors were opened to the press and others who wished. Col. Zacharie came in with the Democratic Committee and filed his protest in behalf of candidates for Congress. It was then moved that the Board go into executive session, and the hall was cleared of all save the two Northern Committees. The Republican Committee has been changed, and now consists of Messrs. Beardsley of Ill , Hale of Maine, Van Allen and Stoughton of N. Y., and Garfield of Ohio

How Returns are Examined

During executive session the proceedings are as follows The returns of a Parish are taken up and placed on a table where the chairmen of the two Committees of Democrats and Republicans are seated by the side of the members. These gentlemen are then invited to examine them and see whether they have been disturbed or tampered with The returns are then opened and the consolidated vote of the Parish for each elector, called returns, are then handed to the clerks who verify the additions made by Commissioners of Election If these prove correct the members of the Board sign and approve them

Another Batch of Protests,

Mr Spofford, counsel for certain Democratic candidates and the counsel for U S Supervisers of Elections filed protests against being excluded from the executive sessions of the Board, and cited a former opinion of District Attorney Beckwith in support of their demand Counsel for other Democratic candidates also filed protests against counting the five Republican Electors not named on the tickets used in the 14th Senatorial District A number of other protests covering various points with reference these votes were also presented by counsel

The Parishes Canvassed.

The Board was in executive session about three hours and in this time examined returns in a number of parishes laying those aside in which there were contests or protests, for action after the uncontested parishes are examined It is found there are contests in nearly all the parishes The parishes canvassed by the Returning Board are as follows

	Tilden	Hayes
Ascension	1 200	2 074
Assumption	1 680	1 692
Avoyelles	1 471	1 505
Calcasieu	1 208	84
Cameron	245	52
Point Coupee	1 080	1 987
St Bernard	136	691
St James	1042	1,987
St John Baptist,	743	1,287
	9 005	11,359

These figures do not differ materially from the duplicate poll lists in the hands of the Democratic Committee

FLORIDA

Another Democratic Move

NEW YORK Nov 21 A Tallahassee despatch to the Herald says the Democratic managers, through Col Sellers of Philadelphia and Col Roaby of Tallahassee, made application yesterday to Judge White, of the U S Circuit Court now at Waukulla, for an injunction restraining Gov Stearns from undertaking to canvass the returns of the Electoral vote to the exclusion of the Board of Canvassers, and also a mandamus compelling the Board of Canvassers to begin the canvassing of votes at once

A Statement from W E Chandler.

A letter from W E Chandler dated Tallahassee last night claims Florida for Hayes, but says the State is close and that it is not safe to mention any figures as that would give the Democrats a clue to the amount of alteration necessary to make in the returns from Democratic counties to secure a majority for Tilden He explains the law in reference to counting the electoral vote and says it makes no difference whether Gov Stearns or the Canvassers count it, as they are all men of high character

A Screed from Manton Marble

Manton Marble has a long document in the World, stating that the action contemplated by Gov Stearns of Florida, is a monstrous fraud, and claims that Stearns a few days ago admitted it was the duty of the Board of Canvassers to canvass the returns Marble claims that troops have been sent to counties to enable Republicans to reform the counts of returns He intimates that measures have been adopted to frustrate the desperate scheme

Democratic Manœuvring

TALLAHASSEE, Nov 21 On petition of the Democratic lawyers Judge White, of the U S Circuit Court, has granted a temporary injunction restraining the Governor from canvassing the vote for Electors and ordered the Governor to appear Thursday to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent He has also issued an order in the shape of a mandamus to the Returning Board to appear on Thursday and show cause why a mandamus ordering them to proceed at once with the count should not be issued Papers were served this evening There is an appeal from this to the Supreme Court but its regular session will not begin until next January and unless it convenes of its own volition before Dec 6 when the Electoral certificates must be issued, there will be no court to which appeal can be made

SOUTH CAROLINA

A Democratic Summary of what is Shown by the Doctored Returns.

NEW YORK Nov 21 The Herald's Columbia despatch gives the following majorities in Congressional Districts, as ascertained by the State Board of Canvassers from the face of the official returns — First district, Rainey, Rep majority 1 519, second, Cain, Rep majority, 8 357, third, Aiken, Dem majority, 5,926, fourth, Evans, Dem majority, 5,840, fifth, Smalls, Rep majority, 1,438 The result of the election may be briefly summed up on the Democratic side as follows Election of Governor and Lieut Governor, a gain of seven State Senators and 31 Representatives, which secures the return of a Democrat to the U S Senate, gain of two Congressmen and five Solicitors election of Comptroller General and probably of Attorney General and Superintendent of Education

The Truth to be Brought Out.

A Columbia special to the Times says Judge Bond has arrived and will open the U S District Court next Monday He will immediately proceed to the trial of persons arrested for murder and riot during the late canvass He says these trials will develop the true state of things in South Carolina during the campaign and hopes the evidence will be published in full in the Northern papers

The Edgefield and other Frauds

Affidavits have been sent here signed by 900 colored men in Edgefield county, saying they were not permitted to vote at the late election, and yet returns from that county show votes of 2,200 in excess of its male citizens over 21 years of age as appears by the census of 1875 There are upwards of fifty Commissioners, Managers of Elections and U S Marshals now here ready to testify to frauds in elections and intimidation in Laurens, Edgefield, Barnwell and other counties

Action of the Court—A Rather Vague Despatch.

COLUMBIA, Nov 21 The Board of Canvassers made a report to the Supreme Court on Electors and State officers. The Court now permits the Board of Canvassers to decide only on Congressmen and legislators as indicated by returns. This action will decide the question of Governor The Court will act to-morrow regarding the report of the Board on Electors and State officers. Ex-U. S Attorney General Ackerman, U. S. District Attorney Corbin and ex-Congressman Elliott appeared as Attorneys for the Republican candidates

PENNSYLVANIA

The Official Vote.

HARRISBURG, Nov 21 The official vote of Pennsylvania is as follows: Hayes. 384,148, Tilden, 366,204 Cooper, 7,204, Smith, Prohibitionist, 1,318, and a peculiar ticket headed by a local candidate, 83

NEW YORK CITY

The Herald's Bugaboo.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 The Herald has three columns of matter about the massing of troops in Washington, but the only news in the whole of it is that some persons fear riots when the Democratic torchlight procession takes place on the 29th, and that the presence of troops is simply precautionary.

Wrecked in Monday's Gale.

Schooner Annie C. Cook, from Bonaire, ashore five miles east of Skinnecock light, was bound to Providence She lies head off shore, with a small anchor out. There was a heavy sea yesterday running and breaking all over her. Her cabin and galley are washed off, and it was thought she would break up last night. The captain, his wife and child and crew were saved

The bark W. A Farnsworth lost both her anchors, yesterday, near City Island, and is now lying in a disabled condition off Throgg's Neck. The Wrecking Company will endeavor to save her from complete wreck.

The Storm in the Sound

The Stonington boat with Boston and eastern passengers arrived in time this morning. The storm was very severe on the Sound. The Fall River boat has not arrived and is understood to be still at Fall River storm bound

The Earthquake

Yesterday afternoon a vibration like an earthquake shock was felt at several places in the lower part of the city It was distinctly perceptible in Wall street, in the Equitable building, in the building of the Evening Post, and in the Associated Press loft of the Western Union Building

An Extensive Fire Raging.

Nov 22, 1 30 A M. Shortly after mid night it was reported at police headquarters that Wm. H. Payne's grain and flour mills and elevators at the corner of 130th street and Second Avenue were on fire — The flames gained rapidly in spite of efforts of the firemen The fire is still raging (1 30 A M) and it is impossible to make any estimate of damage which will probably be very large.

FROM BOSTON

Marine Disasters.

BOSTON, Nov 21. A vessel's quarter board, bearing the name 'Taglioni,' has been found at Hull Also a main beam marked 28 tons, supposed to be from the schooner which drifted from Gloucester yesterday

Schooner E D Sawyer Cummings, from New York for St John, N B , parted her chain and drifted out of Gloucester harbor at 3 o'clock this morning, but went ashore on Nixes Mate She was towed off by a tug and brought to this city, having received slight damage

LONDON Nov 21 The Government has permitted the publication of a letter from Lord Loftus indorsed by Prince Gortschakoff giving report of an interview in which the Czar solemnly disclaimed any purpose of conquest in Turkey or design upon Constantinople and scouted the idea of Russian designs upon India He was desirous only of securing the rights of the Eastern Christians, and that England should cooperate instead of distrusting

McGilvery & Co., Searsport, now lying at the wharf at High Head has been loaded with deals by Messrs. Hayford & Stetson and Hodgkins & Co, for Liverpool, and will probably go down river to-day, stopping at Searsport where some finishing touches will be put on The cabin is unusually large and elegantly furnished for the convenience of the captain and his family and the first and second officers. Everything about the ship is first-class and a credit to the builders She will be commanded by Captain Peleg Nickels, an old veteran in sea-faring life, who is justly proud of his vessel

THE B & P. RAILROAD

Meeting of the Stockholders at City Hall—An Interesting Report and Action Thereon

Yesterday morning the Stockholders of the B & P Railroad to the number of fifty or more, met in City Hall agreeably to the call published, to hear a report from a Committee appointed at a meeting of the Directors and to take action regarding the running of the road The gathering was called to order by Hon Noah Woods, Secretary of the Board, and the President being absent Hon John B Foster was called to the Chair The preliminary business being disposed of Hon A M Robinson of Dover called for the report of the Committee appointed by the Directors, which was read by Hon A G Wakefield, Chairman, and is as follows

To the Stockholders of the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad Company

At a meeting of the Directors of said Company held on the second instant the undersigned were appointed to investigate the system of tariff which existed between said Company and the E & N A Railway Company prior to the lease to said Company and also since its termination Also to report a plan for the future operation of the road, and further to investigate and report all rights of property as existing between the B & P R R Company, and any person, or corporation

We have examined the subject so far as the limited time and our other duties would permit, and respectfully submit the following as the result of our examination

On the first day of December, 1869, the E & N A R. Company contracted with the B & P Railroad Company to carry their passengers and freight in the cars of the B & P Company over the road of the E & N A Railway, between the stations in Bangor and Oldtown They were also to sell tickets to passengers going from stations on their road to stations on the B & P Railroad, way bill all freight, collect all freight bills on freight coming from any station on the B & P road to any station on their road, unload all articles of freight, not unloaded by the owners, and haul all empty cars necessary for the business, free of charge, and account monthly for all money received

In consideration for this service, the B & P R Company, agreed to pay the E & N A Railway Company, for each ton of slate carried to Bangor, fifty cents calling 4 squares a ton, for each ton of iron, fifty cents, for certain articles named in the freight tariff of the E & N A Company, on which there were specific rates, one-half the rates named in the E & N A Tariff, and for all other articles of freight, sixty cents per ton, and twenty-five cents for each passenger from Bangor and intermediate stations, to the B & P Railroad and also to sell tickets for passengers and way bill all freight from any of their stations to any station on the E & N A Railroad, and collect all money for freight from the E & N A Railroad to the B & P Road, and account for the money monthly This arrangement was to continue until the first day of January 1872, and until either party should give the other three months notice to terminate it At the expiration of the time named, the rates paid for passenger and freight transportation not proving satisfactory to the B & P Company, they asked for a reduction and an arrangement was made, April 1, 1872, between the two companies, that the rates on freight should be reduced ten per cent , and that passengers between Oldtown, Orono, Veazie and Bangor be carried for twenty cents each, and between Greatworks station and Old town ten cents each; and that the superintendents agree upon rates for excursions This system of tariff rates between the two Companies continued in force until the lease of the B & P Railroad to the Consolidated E & N A Railway Company on the first day of April 1873 The gross total amount received by the B & P R Company for passengers freight and mails for the years 1870 1871 and 1872 after paying the E & N A Company their proportion of the earnings of the Road, and also the allowance to Stage and Steamboat Companies was for 1870 $9,837 31 for 1871 $18 130 97 and for 1872, $19,267 01 being a gain of over 49 per cent in the gross earnings in 3 years During these years, there were paid to the E & N A Company, not included in the above sums for freight and passengers $11 771 51 $20 744 01 and $16 721 63 It will be noticed that though the gross income of the road was over $7 000 more in 1872 than in 1871 there was paid to the European Company more than $4 000 less in 1872 than in 1871 This was undoubtedly owing to the reduction of the rates of freight and passengers

During the continuance of the lease no separate account of the earnings and expenses of the Piscataquis road was kept except for the months of May, June July August and September Hence it can not be ascertained whether the road earned enough to pay the interest on its indebtedness It is claimed by the European that it did not

Since the first of May a separate account has been kept, showing the gross earnings for 4 months to Sept., $29,341 19, and expenses $16,238 55 leaving a net of $813 102 64

We are informed by the Superintendent that since the termination of the lease the road has been managed by the E & N A Railway Company, and that a separate account of the earnings, and so far as practicable, of the expenses, has been kept

We have made some enquiries as to the property turned over to the E & N A Company at the time of the lease We have a copy of the inventory, and have been furnished by the engineer and superintendent, with a schedule of the property, now on hand A large part of the real estate fixtures, except the usual wear and a few alterations is in the same condition, as when leased The principal changes are these The wood shed at Oldtown, has been converted into a building for bridge lumber A water station has been erected at Alton, a large wood shed has been built at South Sebec with materials taken from the car house at Foxcroft and Dover. The turn table at Dover has been moved to Abbot, and that at Guilford, to Blanchard.

Of the rolling-stock, the four engines are reported on hand, and in very good condition. Two passenger, two baggage, and one flange car, and one snow plow, are reported being the number leased. There were leased to the Company, twenty-six box, and thirty-eight flat cars, three covered flat cars for ordinary use and one cattle car We are informed that three of the flat cars have been changed into box cars Hence there should be 29 box cars, whereas there are only 27, and there are only 34 flat cars There is also a loss of 4 platform cars. We are informed that those cars were all lost before the present Superintendent took charge of the road There was also delivered to the E & N A Company, a quantity of tools and fixtures including 2 safes, 1 at Bangor and the other at Dover. The master mechanic at Matawamkeag gives assurance that all the tools and fixtures can be found This can be ascertained, only, by some person having with him the inventory of the articles leased, and making a personal examination of the articles. Most or all of the iron on the side tracks of the B. & P. Road has been taken up and placed on the European, and replaced by iron from the old Bangor and Oldtown Rail Road It is said to be one mile or more in length.

Three plans for the management of the Board have been suggested,

1st. To lease it for an agreed per cent of the gross earnings. 2nd. To place it under the supervision of the officers of the E. & N A. Road, keeping distinct and separate accounts of its earnings and expenses, and paying a fair part of the salaries of the supervising officers, and such incidental expenses as are common to both roads, and 3d, to manage the road as it was managed before the lease.

Each of these plans has some advantages over the other two as well as disadvantages. The first plan is the most simple, after the percentage shall be agreed on. It is easy to ascertain a given percentage of an ascertained amount. But there are not sufficient data to serve as a basis for making a just division of the gross earnings of the road. For more than three years no separate account of the earnings or expenses of the road were kept With the imperfect knowledge we have on that subject, a reasonable approximation to an equitable line of division of the earnings could hardly be arrived at Besides in the matter of repairs, there would always be a clashing of interests as to how much or how few repairs should be made on the road

The second plan contemplates separate accounts in everything except where there is a common service, partly for one road and partly for the other, as the salaries of the superintendent, some other officers, office rent, etc Undoubtedly there would be some saving in this direction But it occurs to us that there must be the same working force on the road, whether it is run on this plan or as an independent road

As to the future operations of the road

We also recommend that this same committee, or another be appointed to confer with the E & N A R R Company to see what arrangements, if any, can be made with them to aid in running the road as contemplated in the second plan or to run it on any other plan and also what additional officers, and what additional expense will be incurred in operating the road as before the lease,

A THOMPSON
NEWELL BLAKE

BANGOR Nov 21 1876

On motion of Hon J P Bass the report was accepted, and being now properly before the meeting he advocated the taking of the road by the city as the heaviest stockholder and most interested party in it success He thought the city could run it as a separate institution and that the City Treasurer could also act as Treasurer of the road and in this and other ways not definitely stated make a saving that would make the net earnings larger

Hon A M Robinson said that by common consent the road has already reverted to the city, no one else now has it and it is at present run by the E & N A Railway, Company in lieu of the other party not taking formal possession He thought the elaborate report made concluded the business of the day as it recommended further and a more detailed examination of the affairs of the road

Arad Thompson followed giving some statistics as to the earnings of the road and the necessity for its extension to Moosehead Lake

Finally Mr Robinson offered the following for the consideration of the stockholders

Voted, That Moses Giddings Arad Thompson M S Drummond and J S Ricker be a committee to confer with the European & North American Railway to see on what terms said corporation will supervise or run the B & P Railroad also to see what additional expense will be incurred by running the road as a separate corporation and report at an adjourned meeting of the stockholders to be called at a future early day

Mr Bass objected to the adoption of the report made by the Committee and Mr Robinson's resolution, as was suggested by the Chairman and offered the following amendment

"That the Stockholders recommend that the City of Bangor take possession of the B & P Railroad as provided in the loan act

The vote on the adoption of the committee's report was about to be put to a viva voce vote, when Mr Bass objected and insisted on a stock vote being taken which was done and resulted as follows

Whole number of votes,	4002
In favor of adoption	4000
Opposed	2

and the report was adopted and Mr Robinson's resolution with the following amendment passed

"That the committee be authorized to make a schedule of property belonging to the road as recommended in the report of the committee adopted "

On motion of Moses Gidding, Esq , the meeting adjourned to 4 o clock P M

A smaller number of the stockholders assembled at 4 o clock and Moses Giddings Esq , made a report under the resolution offered by Mr Robinson in the forenoon, the report being nothing more than that the E & N A Railway will run the B & P road one year for 60 per cent of the gross earnings After some discussion the report, in order that it might be made to embrace all points under the resolution was recommitted Further discussion followed and Dr Ladd offered the following

Voted That run the road entirely separate from the E & N A Railway paying for transportation to Oldtown a fair rate to be agreed upon

This was after some discussion and the rejection of an amendment offered by Mr Bass, laid on the table and the committee given further time to complete a report under the provisions of the resolution

More discussion followed and Mr Rick er moved to reconsider the resolution under which the committee were to act which was done and he amended it so as to read as follows

Voted, That Moses Giddings Arad Thompson M S Drummond and J S Ricker be a committee to confer with the E & N A Railway to see on what terms said corporation will supervise or run the B & P Railroad, also to see what additional expense will be incurred by running the road as a separate corporation, and that the same committee make a schedule of all property of the company and submit the same at an adjourned meeting of the stockholders

The resolution as amended, was adopted, and the meeting adjourned to reassemble on Monday, the 27th

"HARD TIMES"

Mr Beecher's Second Lecture in Norombega — A Large and Good Audience.

As we have already said the most brilliant of lecturers before our people in these days rarely ever fill Norombega Hall, even with subjects of taking interest, and usually on a second appearance the audience is somewhat less than when the speaker comes before our people new, as it were with a reputation elsewhere gained, but last evening, Mr Beecher's lecture, with an interval of only four days between it and his first, was delivered to an audience hardly less than the crowded house which listened to him last Friday evening. Mr Beecher's appearance on the stage was greeted with a round of applause indicative of the warm friendship of many who, though not personally acquainted with, yet knew Henry Ward Beecher as an eloquent speaker, a Christian man and a noble philanthropist. He was introduced briefly by Rev. S P Fay, and begun his polished address, of which a brief sketch is but the feeding of chaff instead of the rich grain which contains the more nutriment

Mr Beecher spoke without notes, and rapidly outlined the depression of business at the time of martyred Lincoln's first election to the Presidency and the subsequent stimulus given to it by the entrance of the Nation upon a civil war, which called forth all the producing powers of this vast country Revulsions in the commercial world follow, at certain periods, the overstraining or inflation of business and restore a more cautious carrying on of the business of the country. Touching the relations of credit to business and to men, Mr. Beecher said that, "credit is the value set on true manhood, in distinction from money. It is man weighed against money. The credit he furnishes money to one who has integrity, judgment and manhood, and the one labors to repay, and thus benefits the community at large by gaining something for himself, being a part of the community.

The workings of credit produce revulsions, for during the first five year of prosperous times the lender loans to men who deserve it, men who are cautious, sharp and of good judgment. Business starts up and everything prospers, and these second five years they loan to men who think they can do more than they can, and the third five years money is loaned rashly, taking in the class of adventurers and credit becomes adulterated The mason owes the brickmaker, he owes the tin smith, he owes the boot-maker, he owes the merchant and so on and settlements come, which is the day of judgment for the community Thus it is that we see a revulsion every fifteen or twenty years But this is an unhealthy credit and were it kept where it is the first five years it would be productive of good

The speaker eloquently set forth the effects of an inflated currency, referring to the war which so lately swept over the country, for illustrations Property he defined as anything that has been converted into a form useful to man, as farms, houses etc Gold or paper money is but a sign or representation of property, which last is the product of labor And when the paper issue exceeds the amount of gold then does it become of less and less value in proportion to the excess Europe felt the stimulus arising from our war and our commercial revulsions go all over the world War with us is rare, with Europe chronic and when our country was at war and needed the products of Europe she felt the stimulus being in debt from her wars it helped her when ended the help was gone

Talking of the cause of hard times now, Mr Beecher said the mother cause was the great civil war which called for all the productions of the country in vast quantities which stimulated production until the war was over The consumption was not equal to the great product the currency was inflated enormously and a revulsion resulted which is shrinking the business of the country to a solid basis and shrinking is not pleasant, though wholesome The effect of this revulsion is good for it corrects an injudicious political economy, that is the producers and distributors are equalized The great army of the latter is reduced some leaving the cities to work —to produce and some to live on their relations The effect is also to humanize It drives men back to their families that best and safest of all earthly harbors which the cares and bustle of business have kept them so very much away from

The closing words of the speaker were touching and eloquent and as his voice died away with the words, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven, the stillness of the audience was perfect During the delivery of the address, Mr Beecher was often interrupted by applause particularly when he referred to the benefits and the results of a hard money basis for doing business, the grand result of the war, and the effect of revulsions upon that class who left humbler employments to become distributors that is, clerks agents, etc in great cities until the producers were vastly in the minority and the excess of distributors was sent back again to work and produce at least a livelihood for themselves

ANDREWS ACADEMY OPENING

The First Assembly in the New Hall

The opening of an elegant new suite of Assembly Rooms in Hatch's Block by our popular orchestral leader and dancing teacher Mr M H Andrews, brought together an exceedingly pleasant company last evening to inaugurate the dancing season The new Hall and its commodious and convenient drawing rooms have been previously described in these columns but last evening they were made specially attractive by tasteful decorations of flags and bunting festooned along the side wall and draped over the doors and window At the first call of the cornet the floor was well filled with dancers, and the order of exercises was very successfully carried out with Mr I P Wood as Floor Director and Messrs Furness Stern Pullen Dakin Shaw Appleton , Bibb Hill and Jones as Aides Excellent music was furnished by the Orchestra with Kimball at the grand piano and Mr Andrews devoted himself as usual to providing in every way for the enjoyment of the guests Midway in a list of eighteen dances the company repaired to the adjoining Hall of the Art Association, where refreshments were served in fine style by Fraser, and subsequently the dancing was continued until somewhat past midnight The occasion was most enjoyable in all its features and Mr Andrews is to be congratulated upon the successful and pleasant inauguration of the season in his new quarters The accommodations for his dancing classes and assembly parties are excellent and his efforts to make them so should be rewarded with a liberal patronage

BY MRS SARAH J HALE

Almighty Lord of glory!
Our praise to Him we bring,
And chant our country's story
Where God alone is King.
His outstretched arm sustaining,
Behold the Mayflower comes!
His mercy foreordaining
Our land for Freedom's home.

Though wintry darkness gathers,
And dearth and death prevail,
The faithful Pilgrim Fathers
Could look within the veil,
O joy amid the sadness!
They're free to do and pray,
And keep in sober gladness
Their first Thanksgiving Day

These seeds of Faith and Freedom
God's Word hath watered free,
O'er rocks outscorning Edom
They reach the Sunset Sea,
And East and West uniting
One family become,
With North and South relighting
Love's lamp—We're all at Home!

With half of Heaven above us,
An ocean on each hand
We've room for all who love us
And room for rother band
We praise the great All-Giver,
Our home feast we display,
And through the years forever
Keep free Thanksgiving Day.

In palace and in prison
Our festival is one,
The witness Christ is risen
Good will for men begun
Our heart one hope rejoices,
Our souls in concert pray,
Mid songs of choral voices—
God bless Thanksgiving Day!
